David Filipov

Boston
Globe

David Filipov was The Boston Globe's Moscow bureau chief from 1996 to 2004, during which time he reported from numerous conflicts, including Afghanistan and Iraq. He returned to the Boston headquarters of the Globe in 2004, and currently writes features about a wide variety of topics throughout Massachusetts and New England. We have asked him to take a look back at his experiences in Russia and Afghanistan, and give us the benefit of his unique personal perspective.
