

MARINA THOMPSON: COLOR CREATES LIGHT

at the Concord Free Public Library

129 Main St., Concord, MA

June 2 through June 28

Marina Thompson will present a selection of mixed media prints and encaustics, produced between 2012 and 2014, in a two-person show at the Concord Free Public Library.

Known for her rich and delicate control of color, Thompson creates abstract images of subtle complexity, layering line and form to evoke radiant, lyric narratives. Redolent with tactile textures and tones, pulsing with luminous energy, her prints and encaustics contain intricate layers of gesture and thought.

Marina Thompson's diverse and extensive creative resume involves 15 years as a designer, weaver, and marketer of hand woven rugs, followed by 15 years as an illustrator for magazines, book publishing, packaging, and logo design. In 2004 she finished a multi-room mural for the new Miami Children's Museum. She now focuses her boundless creative energy on the painterly concerns of color, line and form. Educated at Antioch College, the Art Institute of Boston, Mass. College of Art, and RISD, she is a member of Boston Printmakers.
